Murray River Turtles · Questions 1–6

Murray River Turtles

River turtles live in slow rivers and wetlands. They are well suited to this place, but they still need food, water and shelter to survive. Conditions can change across the day and through the seasons, so safe resting places are important.

Their webbed feet and smooth shells help them swim and rest near logs. This adaptation makes everyday tasks easier and can also help them avoid danger. Young animals learn where to feed and shelter by following adults or responding to their surroundings.

They feed on water plants and small animals. As they move through their habitat, they also become part of a larger food web that connects plants and animals. Changes to one part of this web can affect many other living things.

One challenge is damaged nesting banks. People can help by keeping riverbanks undisturbed, observing wildlife from a distance and leaving natural shelters undisturbed. Small, repeated actions can protect the habitat without preventing people from learning about it.

- 1 A waterway study clue asks: what is the main purpose of Murray River Turtles?

A to advertise a wildlife toy
B to explain how river turtles live and survive
C to tell a fantasy story about river turtles
D to give instructions for catching river turtles

The Message in the Bottle · Questions 13–18

The Message in the Bottle

Eli was helping to tidy a rocky beach when eli noticed a green bottle. It looked ordinary at first, but a tiny mark on its side seemed freshly scratched. Dust lay everywhere except beneath the object, as though it had recently been moved.

As soon as Eli picked it up, the message inside used symbols instead of words. Eli hesitated. The discovery was exciting, yet it might belong to someone else or be too delicate to handle alone. A hurried choice could damage both the object and the clues around it.

Instead of rushing ahead, Eli copied the symbols and compared them with trail signs. Each new clue matched something already visible in a rocky beach, so the search became careful rather than wild. Eli paused after every step to record what had changed.

At last, the symbols led to a safe nesting area that needed protection. Eli wrote a short note explaining where the object had been found and what had happened. The note included the order of the clues so another person could check the discovery.

By the end of the afternoon, the discovery had become part of the place's story. Eli was proud, not because the object was valuable, but because patience and careful thinking had protected it. The adults agreed that the object should stay with a clear label for future visitors.

- 13 While preparing the waterway study, why did Eli hesitate in The Message in the Bottle?

A the clues had all disappeared
B the object might belong to someone or be delicate
C the location was already closed
D the object was too heavy to see

A paused because of uncertainty
B shouted with excitement
C ran away immediately
D forgot the discovery

- 17 The waterway study question is: what changes by the end of The Message in the Bottle?

A all records of the discovery are removed
B the discovery becomes part of the place's known story
C the location is permanently closed
D the character throws the object away

- 15 To check the waterway study, what did Eli find at the beginning of The Message in the Bottle?

A a new school bag
B a box of fresh food
