Why a counter slows down · Questions 1–6

A force is a push or a pull. When a moving counter touches a surface, friction acts in the opposite direction to its movement. Friction makes the counter slow down. A smooth surface such as polished wood usually creates less friction than towel. With very little friction, an object travels farther before stopping. The amount of friction also depends on how firmly two surfaces press together. Friction is useful too: it helps shoes grip the ground and bicycle brakes stop wheels. Without enough friction, people could slip and tyres could slide. Too much friction can be unhelpful because moving parts may heat up or wear away, so machines sometimes use oil to reduce it.

1 Why a counter slows down: What makes the moving counter slow down?

- A light warming the surface B sound pushing it forward
C friction acting against its movement D gravity pulling it sideways

2 Why a counter slows down: What would most likely happen if there were very little friction?

- A The counter would stop at once. B The counter would travel farther before stopping.
C The counter would become heavier. D The counter would change colour.

3 Why a counter slows down: Mark each statement True or False.

Statement	True	False
Friction can help bicycle brakes work.	☐	☐
Towel usually creates less friction than polished wood.	☐	☐
Friction acts against a moving object.	☐	☐

4 Why a counter slows down: Which surface would probably let the object travel farthest?

- A towel B a thick towel
C a rubber mat D polished wood

5 Why a counter slows down: Which diagram shows the applied force and friction acting in opposite directions?

- A push ← friction ← B push ↓ friction ↓
C push → ← friction D push → friction →

6 Why a counter slows down: Which pair of statements is correct?

- 1 The text explains how friction changes movement.
 2 The text gives examples of useful friction.
 3 The text tells a fictional adventure.
A 3 only B 1 and 2
C 1 and 3 D 2 and 3

Testing surfaces with a counter · Questions 7–12

This experiment compares how far the same counter travels across polished wood, paper and towel. Use the same ramp each time.

- Place the ramp at the marked height.
- Put polished wood at the bottom of the ramp.
- Release the counter without pushing it.
- Measure and record the distance travelled.
- Repeat the trial 5 times for each surface, then compare the results.

7 Testing surfaces with a counter: Number these steps from 1 to 4.

- ___ Put polished wood at the bottom of the ramp.
 ___ Measure and record the distance travelled.
 ___ Place the ramp at the marked height.
 ___ Release the counter without pushing it.

8 Testing surfaces with a counter: How many times is each surface tested?

- A 6 B 15
C 5 D 4

9 Testing surfaces with a counter: What type of text is this?

- A a poem B a procedure
C a narrative D a book review

10 Testing surfaces with a counter: Why are several surfaces tested?

- A to compare how each surface affects the distance B to make the ramp taller each time
C to change the size of the object D to avoid measuring any result

11 Testing surfaces with a counter: Which material would be the best replacement for towel?

- A a glass sheet B smooth foil
C polished plastic D a woollen mat

12 Testing surfaces with a counter: Using both texts, where should the counter travel the shortest distance?

- A in the air B on no surface

Finn's guide to three kinds of fitness · Questions 13–18

During a health lesson at the theatre, Finn's class learned that a sedentary person spends long periods sitting and moving very little. Regular activity helps the heart, muscles and joints. Aerobic activities such as skipping make the heart beat faster. Strength activities such as rowing make muscles work against resistance. Flexibility activities such as reaching exercises help joints move through a comfortable range. Each type has a different purpose, so doing only one type leaves out other benefits. Children can build activity into ordinary days by walking, playing active games and helping with safe physical jobs. Activity should suit the person's ability and surroundings. A balanced week includes all three kinds, water, sleep and time to rest.

13 Finn's guide to three kinds of fitness: What does sedentary mean in this text?

- A stretching every muscle B spending much time sitting and moving very little
C training for a race every day D moving safely in deep water

14 Finn's guide to three kinds of fitness: Match each fitness type to its description.

aerobic ____ strength ____ flexibility ____

- A helps joints move comfortably B makes the heart beat faster C makes muscles work against resistance

15 Finn's guide to three kinds of fitness: Which activity is aerobic?

- A rowing B reaching exercises
C sitting quietly D skipping

16 Finn's guide to three kinds of fitness: Complete the sentence using two words from the box.

A balanced week includes ____ activity and time to ____.

Word box: regular • rest • sedentary • resistance • range

17 Finn's guide to three kinds of fitness: Which statement is most likely true of a fit person?

- A They sit still for most of every day. B They can use heart, muscles and joints in different activities.
C They never need to rest. D They do only one kind of activity.

18 Finn's guide to three kinds of fitness: What is the main message of the text?

- A Different kinds of activity help the body in different ways. B Only competitive sport improves fitness.
C Rest should replace all exercise. D Muscles are the only part of fitness.

C to teach how to repair a toy D to report a sporting result

Review: Unusual Journeys · Questions 30–34

Unusual Journeys by Theo Brown

This information book contains surprising facts, labelled pictures and short explanations. Its chapters move from simple examples to less familiar ones. The opening chapter gives readers enough background to understand the later examples. The captions make the pictures easy to understand, and small fact boxes add details without interrupting the main explanation. The index is useful for finding a topic again. Some pages use words that younger readers may need to look up, and the final chapter feels too short. Even so, curious readers will probably return to the pictures and facts more than once. Rating: ★★★★★

30 Review: Unusual Journeys: Who wrote the book being reviewed?

- A Theo Brown B Finn Lee
C Quinn Jones D The reviewer

31 Review: Unusual Journeys: What is the main purpose of the review?

- A to retell every chapter B to sell equipment
C to teach a science experiment D to give information and an opinion about the book

32 Review: Unusual Journeys: Which two topics are not included in the book?

- ☐ surprising facts ☐ a recipe ☐ labelled pictures
☐ chapter headings ☐ a fictional diary ☐ short explanations

33 Review: Unusual Journeys: What criticism does the reviewer make?

- A The title is missing. B Some words are difficult and the final chapter is too short.
C The book has no pictures. D Every chapter repeats the same page.

34 Review: Unusual Journeys: What does the star rating show?

- A The reviewer gives the book 5 out of 5. B The book has five authors.
C The book contains five chapters. D The reviewer read it five times.

Finn's story: The missing label · Questions 35–39

Finn carried a heavy box into the theatre. A loose corner caught on the doorway, and three dusty folders slid onto the floor. While stacking them, Finn noticed a brass key beneath the lowest folder. It was labelled with Quinn's name. Finn remembered seeing Quinn earlier, but could not remember which group had left first. Calling across the crowded room would only interrupt everyone. Finn wanted to return it at once, but the crowded room made the search difficult. Instead of guessing, Finn placed the object safely on the desk and asked the supervisor to check the visitor list. The supervisor found a contact note and sent a short message. Soon Quinn returned, relieved to see the missing object. The unpleasant job of moving the box had led to a welcome surprise.

35 Finn's story: The missing label: Match each describing word to the noun it describes.

heavy ____ dusty ____ crowded ____

A room B box C folders

36 Finn's story: The missing label: Number these events from 1 to 4.

- ____ The supervisor checked the visitor list.
- ____ The box caught on the doorway.
- ____ Quinn returned for the object.
- ____ Finn found the brass key.

37 Finn's story: The missing label: Which word best describes Finn?

- A impatient B responsible
C careless D selfish

38 Finn's story: The missing label: Why was it difficult for Finn to return the object immediately?

- A The room was crowded and the owner was not easy to find. B The object was too large to lift.
C The supervisor refused to help. D The visitor list had been destroyed.

39 Finn's story: The missing label: Why is The missing label a suitable title?

- A The story explains how to build a box. B The characters compete in a race.
C The story is mainly about bad weather. D An inconvenient task leads to an unexpected discovery.
